NAME FOUR LOCATIONS

Exiles Contend Soviet Missiles Hidden In Cuba

NEW YORK (AP) — Two anti - Castro Cuban organizations Friday named four locations in Cuba where they claimed Soviet missiles and aircraft are now hidden in "gigantic caves."

They also quoted Cuban sources as saying that 15,000 Soviet troops are stationed on the island.

U.S. intelligence sources have estimated that 9,000 to 15,000 Soviet troops are in Cuba.

The claims were made by the Second National Front of Escambray, and Alpha 66, two organizations which said they had formed a military pact a month ago.

PINPOINTS CAVES

Speaking for the groups at a news conference here, Dr. Armando Fleites, general secretary of the front, pinpointed on a map three coastal caves where he said missiles were stored: in the town of Camorico in Matanzas Province, in Nuevitas in Camaguey Province and Trinidad in Los Vilas Province.

He said Soviet bombers were housed in underground hangers in San Julian in Pinar del Rio Province.

Fleites said that the national front and Alpha 66 were responsible for the commando-type raid last Tuesday at Juan Francisco Beach on the north coast of Los Vilas Province.

Fleites said the raiders, whose strength he would not disclose, saw more than 20 Soviet soldiers wearing Cuban militia uniforms. They also saw Soviet gun emplacements, Soviet barbed wire and Soviet concrete barriers, he said.

The raiders held the town of Juan Francisco for an hour and withdrew without a single casualty after placing explosives, Fleites said.

Fleites said that a letter had been sent to U.N. Secretary-General U Thant informing him of the groups' part in the raid and that the information on underground missile sites and hangers had been turned over to the U.S. government for its information.

He also declared that the raiders did not operate from American soil and have no intention of doing so. He declined to name the point of origin of the raids.

U.S. Returning Naval Families To Guantanamo

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Happy at the prospect of reunion with husbands and fathers in time for Christmas, 29 women and children flew back Friday to the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

They were the first to return of 2,800 military and civil service dependents who were evacuated from Guantanamo on short notice Oct. 22, the day President Kennedy announced the blockade of Cuba.

The 10 adults and 19 children who departed Friday occupied extra seats on a regularly scheduled flight. Another regular flight will leave Norfolk on Tuesday. For a week beginning Dec. 12, special flights will return evacuees to Guantanamo.

Several hundred dependents will return to Guantanamo aboard the USS Geiger, which will sail from New York on Dec. 11 and again Dec. 19.

"Frankly, I never thought we'd be going back, and I'm just so happy that we are," said May Czenave as she waited to board the plane with her son, Craig, 7. She was the first woman off the first plane that flew evacuees to Norfolk six weeks ago. Her husband is a Navy chief petty officer at Guantanamo.

"I believed all along that we would go back," said Lorraine Hawkins, wife of Lt. Cmdr. Rex Hawkins, operations officer at Guantanamo's Leeward Air Terminal.

Mrs. Hawkins and her three children have lived in a motel since their arrival here. The children are Vickie, a high school senior; Lora, 11, and Gary, 9.

Givers Drive Nearing Goal

The Ouachita Parish United Givers Fund was reported Friday to be within $15,000 of its 1962 campaign goal.

The amount set for this year was $251,000.

"It (the goal) is now in sight and it would be a shame not to reach our goal," officers of the UGF said Friday. "With just a little more push, we'll be able to make it," officials added.

Marine Units In Caribbean Home Bound

Data On Forces In Cuban Crisis Given First Time

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Marine brigade of about 9,000 men is on its way back to California after service in the Caribbean area during the Cuban crisis, the Marine Corps announced Friday.

This was the first official disclosure of the size of the Marine force sent to the Caribbean and to the Guantanamo naval base in late October, when the United States was building up its military power to cope with a missile threat from Cuba.

ON 20 SHIPS

The 5th Marine Expeditionary Brigade, traveling in 20 ships, began arriving at the Panama Canal five days ago, the announcement said.

The entire force, which totals 18,000 including Navy men, is expected to arrive in West Coast ports from Dec. 11-16.

The brigade, commanded by Brig. Gen. William T. Fairbourn, consists of four battalion landing teams, a helicopter squadron, and supporting units.

It was moved from the West Coast to the Caribbean in ships of a Pacific Fleet amphibious task force.

Also headed back for California with the brigade is a battalion landing team flown directly into Guantanamo at the outset of the crisis.

The Marine units returning to Camp Pendleton, El Toro, and Twentynine Palms, Calif., are:

1st Battalion, 1st Marines, commanded by Lt. Col. M. M. Blue, of Burlington, N.C.

3rd Battalion, 1st Marines, Maj. W. J. Masterpool, of Solway, N.Y.

1st Battalion, 7th Marines, Lt. Col. R. B. Prescott, of Portsmouth, N.H.

3rd Battalion, 7th Marines, Lt. Col. Frederick Simpson, of Kansas City, Kan.

2nd Battalion, 1st Marines, Lt. Col. William Gelfman, of Chicago.

Marine Medium Helicopter Squadron 361, Lt. Col. T. J. Ross, of Milwaukee.

Gen. Fairbourn is from Sandy, Utah.

Fire Damages Area Motel In Resort Area

LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special) — High winds fanned a fire of undetermined origin Friday which partially destroyed one section of White Motel, in the resort area one mile north of Lake Providence on Highway 65. The blaze was discovered by workers there around noon.

Estimated loss is $90,000. Fifteen air conditioned rooms with television sets, and a laundry were destroyed.

The motel was constructed in 1957-58 and the laundry was added in 1959.

One section was untouched by the blaze, White said he plans to rebuild the units. He was in Monroe at the time of the blaze.

Three units of the Lake Providence fire department, police officers and members of the sheriff's department helped in fighting the blaze. The fire was brought under control around 4 p.m. The structure was brick veneer.

14 SHOPPING DAYS TILL CHRISTMAS

Wind Frees British From Lethal Smog

Death Toll 106, More Than 1,000 Are Hospitalized

LONDON (AP) — A gentle south wind Friday night freed London from the clutches of a poisonous smog which all but paralyzed the capital for four days and left 106 known dead and more than 1,000 in hospitals.

In the nation's worst fog since 1952, only the criminals had a carnival. For the smash-and-grab boys it was easy. No one could see and almost everyone—innocent and guilty—was wearing a mask. Raiders got away with thousands of pounds worth of jewelry, furs and clothes.

CLEAR PREDICTED

Government weathermen said patches of fog may come down again during the night but predicted most of England should be clear soon after dawn Saturday.

Despite Friday's blue skies in central London, smoke in the air at noon was six times more dense than normal and the sulphur dioxide content seven times greater.

Old people and those with respiratory ailments were the hardest hit. Hospitals throughout southern England kept hundreds of beds ready for additional uses.

Road, rail, air and waterborne traffic began to accelerate. As Thames shipping began moving again, four vessels were in collision in the estuary. No one was hurt.

The Automobile Association reported it dealt with 20,000 breakdown calls during the long black-out.

"A big thank-you is due to many people who went out of their way to be helpful—to bus drivers who acted as pathfinders, to school crossing patrols who took up positions with torches, and to road gangs who were out early sanding the roads," said a spokesman.

Commuter trains out of London on Friday night were mostly on time. During the worst of the fog they ran anything up to four hours late—if they ran at all.

With visibility over a mile, London Airport reported it was back to normal, with a heavy backlog of traffic.

Probably only one man was sorry to see the fog vanish—Dr. Richard Prindle, 37, who flew 3,000 miles from Washington to experience a good British pea-soup.

But his plane was delayed and he got to London in time to see only the sulphurous tail end of the smog.

'WE'RE GETTING CLOSER', OFFICIAL SAYS

Mine Rescuers Have Hopes

CARMICHAELS, Pa. (AP) — Rescue crews, laboring in the second day of operations, inched forward Friday toward 37 coal miners trapped 650 feet underground by a shattering blast.

"We're getting closer," said Pennsylvania Secretary of Mines Lewis Evans. "We haven't given up hope."

He said rescue crews have moved to within 4,700 feet, and possibly 3,000 feet, of the trapped men.

"It is difficult to tell," Evans said, "since the men were strung out in the tunnel. We may be closer to some than others. We may know something definite in 36 hours."

The temperature in the mine is estimated at 50 to 55 degrees. Evans said this would have no effect on the men usually accustomed to these temperatures.

Originally, it was believed that 36 miners were trapped, but U.S. Steel Corp. raised the figure to 37 after rechecking its records.

The miners haven't been heard from since the gas and coal dust explosion cornered them Thursday in a corridor of U.S. Steel's Robena No. 3 mine near this southwestern Pennsylvania town, about 50 miles southwest of Pittsburgh. Mine officials blamed the neces-

Relief Critic Arrested On Bribe Count

NEWBURGH, N.Y. (UPI) — Newburgh City Manager Joseph Mitchell, whose "get tough" crackdown on this city's welfare policies caused a national controversy last year, was arrested in his city hall office Friday on charges of conspiring to take a $20,000 bribe.

Also arrested on the same charge was a New Jersey real estate operator, Lawrence J. De Masi, 42, operator of the De Masi Real Estate and Insurance Agency of Hillsdale, N.J. De Masi was arrested in New York City.

DENIES CHARGES

New York Dist. Atty. Frank S. Hogan charged that Mitchell, 40, demanded a $20,000 fee to assure the re-zoning of Newburgh property owned by Stephen and Joseph Wahrahaftig, twin brothers of Monticello, N.Y.

Hogan, at a New York news conference, said the Wahrahaftigs reported the demand to his office on Monday.

Friday the brothers paid over the sum to De Masi in a Manhattan hotel. De Masi was arrested as he left the hotel. Mitchell was arrested in Newburgh later following a city council meeting.

Mitchell denied all the charges against him "absolutely."

The city manager's controversial crackdown on welfare recipients in Newburgh received nationwide attention last year.

Charging that cheats were free-loading on relief rolls, Mitchell instituted a program to tighten welfare requirements, to put able-bodied relief recipients to work for the city and to cut mothers of more than one illegitimate child off relief rolls entirely.

Britain's Ire At Acheson Alarms JFK

Concern Voiced On Indignation Speech Stirs Up

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy was reported Friday night to be concerned about the possible effect on British public opinion of Dean Acheson's assessment of British world status.

High officials reported the President is worried by the indignation stirred up in London by a speech the former secretary of state made Wednesday at the U.S. Military Academy at West Point.

TRADITIONAL TIES

Kennedy, informants said, feels strongly that the ties between this nation and Britain are not based on whether the United Kingdom is a great power—a question raised by Acheson—but on tradition and on community of interest.

Recent international developments, such as the Cuban crisis and the Red Chinese invasion of India, are examples of the strong link between Washington and London, the sources said.

Kennedy, they added, fully appreciates the British government's prompt and complete backing of his Cuban policy. And he is convinced also that only unrestricted U.S.-British cooperation made possible the success of the recent mission to India by W. Averell Harriman, assistant secretary of state.

The President, it was learned, was in daily telephone contact with Prime Minister Harold Macmillan during the critical days of the Cuban crisis.

The weather adds to the Christmas spirit in the Twin Cities as it continues to be beautiful, in contrast to parts of the nation. Today's outlook calls for a continuation of Friday's mild and fair weather.

The high today, under mostly sunny skies, is expected to range between 54 and 60 degrees with the low tonight around 35 or 40.

While heavy snows and gale-like winds battered much of the United States Friday, Monroe and West Monroe basked under blue skies and a high temperature of 67. The overnight low was a sub-freezing 30.

And Sunday is expected to be no exception around the area with the forecast calling for partly cloudy skies and cool temperatures.

Over the years Goodfellows reputation has grown. One letter received Friday testifies to this as well as to the fact that the service rendered is acute.

Neville Wins Toss; Finals To Be At Home

Neville High School's Tigers will host Reserve Friday night in Brown Stadium at Northeast Louisiana State College in the finals of the State AA playoffs. Game time is 8 p.m.

The Tigers' defending champions of the state, won the toss in Reserve Friday night after the Wildcats defeated Thibodeaux, 7-0, to move into the finals with Neville.

Tickets for the playoff classic will go on sale at the Neville office Monday beginning at 8 a.m.

Approximately 2,200 reserve seats will be available for the game, according to principal Sidney Seegers.

Monroe Mayor W. L. Howard said, "I don't know what to say about it, we're very happy," when told the Tigers would be defending their state title at home. "Who did they get to flip the coin? Don't tell me old Bill Ruple, (Neville's coach) got lucky."

Army To Build Oxford Troops New Quarters

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — The Army is preparing to build more substantial quarters for troops guarding Negro James H. Meredith at the University of Mississippi.

The Corps of Engineers' Mobile district office Friday released an advance notice of the project to construct temporary troop facilities at Oxford costing approximately $75,000.

The project will provide facilities for more than 300 troops. An engineer spokesman described the project as a small one "designed to get the troops off the ground during cold weather."

The advance notice to interested contractors said a bid invitation would be issued about Dec. 13 and the bids will be opened about Dec. 24.

Approximately 500 military policemen remain at Oxford. They are quartered in tents set up at the National Guard armory and at the university airport.

About 18,000 federal troops poured into Oxford following the rioting which attended Meredith's arrival on the campus Sept. 30. Two men were shot to death and scores were injured in the campus disorders.

Specifications in the advance notice called for construction of 25 tent frames with wooden walls and floors measuring 16 by 33 feet.

The successful bidder also will erect 13 government furnished steel prefabricated buildings with a floor area of 20 by 48 feet, and will build concrete floor slabs for two prefabricated buildings 20 by 96 feet.

Thousands Stranded By Huge Drifts

By United Press International

A vicious snowstorm Friday stranded thousands of travelers in drift-bogged Ohio and Pennsylvania, closed hundreds of schools and factories from Indiana and Michigan to New York and left Appalachian Mountain communities paralyzed under 20-foot drifts.

The massive pre-winter storm, swirling through its second day in the wake of a balmy spell of Indian summer, dumped 20 inches of snow on Lorain County, Ohio, 16 to 22 inches on Geauga County in northeast Ohio and 18 inches on Turtle Point, Pa.

STRONG WINDS

Winds of 50 to 70 miles an hour stacked the drifts five feet deep across a broad belt of the eastern Great Lakes region, closing at least 150 roads in Ohio and shutting down 150 miles of the Pennsylvania Turnpike. Road crews struggled to clear the pavements.

Veteran snowfighters said the storm was the worst in the history of the Pennsylvania Turnpike. In Ohio, the storm was the worst since 1954.

Drifts reached depths of 20 feet at Blackwater Falls, W.Va., and 10 feet at Flat Top, W.Va.

The storm knocked out power to more than 40,000 homes in Cleveland, Columbus and other heavily populated sections of Ohio. Travel by car, bus, train and plane was practically non-existent in most of the Buckeye state.

An estimated 2,000 persons were stranded on the Pennsylvania Turnpike. They had sufficient food and blankets.

IN ITS HISTORY OF VIOLENCE

Innocent Victims Sufferings Noted In Files Of Senate Racket Group

CHAPTER 13

The record of crime without punishment bulks large in the history of the Senate Select Committee, as it does throughout the nation.

Side by side with the accounts of multitudes of unpunished crimes, however, are fixed in indelible some hundreds of pathetic stories of the abuses, indignities, and outrages that were piled upon the innocent.

There have been thousands of victims of the criminals — millions if we count all the union members whose union treasuries have been robbed.

Among them were unwitting workmen, businessmen who were powerless to protect themselves, and citizens who were struck by hardship, savagery, and violence without ever having had any connection with unions or management. Some of them were people who never saw their tormentors and never even knew their names.

There was a 14-year-old boy in Los Angeles who was a dutiful son — he tried to carry out the instructions of his father, a bakery owner. He was told to carry baked goods into an establishment that was being struck by the Bakery Workers' Union.

Blackjack

As a witness described it, "Frank Gordon went up to the boy and started pummeling him, and Mr. Nelson ran over to the car and grabbed the blackjack and went over and hit him on the head. They did not quite finish the boy."

In Scranton, Pa., a man named Anthony J. Ruby wanted to build a new house. He hired a contractor named Edward Pozuszek, from nearby Wilkes-Barre, to come to put up the building. Representatives of the Scranton Building Trades Council showed up on the job, asking Mr. Pozuszek, "Who the — allowed you to come here to Scranton to build?"

Pozuszek told the committee his reply: "Mister, it so happens I am an American born, and I am allowed to earn a living in any part of this country as long as I earn it legally."

He was given an ultimatum: "Well, you can't do that in Scranton. You will just pick up your tools and get the — back to Wilkes-Barre where you belong."

What was the difficulty? Pozuszek's carpenters and laborers weren't union men.

The partially finished house was blown apart by dynamite. Scranton is a fine, progressive city. Here are some of the acts of violence that went unchecked and mostly unpunished before the goons were stopped by outraged civic action: a contractor named Hoffa was asked if he who opposed union demands had sugar poured into the fuel tanks of his heavy equipment; a dairy concern had kerosene dumped over the milk and butter in one of its trucks; a construction company that employed only 45 people was picketed by 3,000 men; some of whom were armed with guns, clubs, and iron rods. The vehicles of this firm were sabotaged; wires were pulled out of motors, tires deflated. One non-union driver was hoisted out over the outer darkness, and Hoffa's a bridge railing and was shown "the bottom of the river."

In Tennessee, in the hearings devoted to organized violence in Tennessee and adjacent states, the committee heard investigators La Vern Duffy and James McShane testify to 173 separate acts of labor violence, of which only

CRIME WITHOUT PUNISHMENT
By
Senator John L. McClellan

eight had resulted in court action of any kind.

Let us consider a few picked at random. A taxi driver was hit with a beer bottle and then beaten with a motorcycle chain; a truck owner - operator was beaten so severely that he was laid up for at least two years; a truck driver was ambushed on the highway and had his elbow blasted away by a shotgun.

Dozens of trucks in Tennessee had their fuel tanks contaminated with sugar and syrup; tires were slashed; the number of dynamitings was literally beyond count.

Bob Caldwell, who drove a truck in Knoxville and didn't want to join a union in order to keep his job, went to a ball game one night. His car, parked outside his house, was blown to bits.

Broken Bones

A businessman hired a non-union driver on a temporary basis. The victim was Frank Allen, terminal manager for the Terminal Transport Company in Nashville. He was visited by W. A. Smith, widely known as "Hardcore" of Hearing Smitty. Smith was assistant business manager of Teamsters Local No. 327.

Mr. Allen: "I thought they were leaving at that time, and I stood up at my desk and was looking at some papers. I looked up and Mr. Smith, W. A. Smith, was right in front of me. He said something to the effect, 'Take your hand out of your pocket,' and then he hit me across the face, and he continued to hit me. I was trying to avoid the blows."

The Chairman: "What condition were you in when he left?" Mr. Allen: "I was in pretty bad shape. My nose was bleeding, and I was bleeding from a cut over my eye. The doctor sewed my eye — above my eye — and then I went to a hospital. I was X-rayed, and there were several bones broken. My nose was broken on that side. I stayed in the hospital about one week."

Still In Union

Nine months after the testimony, Hoffa was asked if he who opposed union demands had sugar poured into the fuel tanks of his heavy equipment; a dairy concern had kerosene dumped over the milk and butter in one of its trucks; a construction company that employed only 45 people was picketed by 3,000 men; some of whom were armed with guns, clubs, and iron rods. The vehicles of this firm were sabotaged; wires were pulled out of motors, tires deflated. One non-union driver was hoisted out over the outer darkness, and Hoffa's comment was that Smith had "er, more resolute, with strict enforcement provisions. It must be admitted that the Congress showed very little taste for the job of stepping into an area that labor itself declined to do much housekeeping in, and during the first session of the Eighty-sixth Congress most legislators continued to approach the issue of labor reform timidly, haltingly, and seemingly without determination.

One gained the impression that many men believed that if they closed their eyes, the criminal activities that demanded correction would somehow fade away and disappear.

There were certainly members of Congress who wanted a very mild bill, or better still, no bill at all. There were a few who insisted on a message so strong it would have no chance of passage.

In summary, we worked for a bill that would provide the needed remedies, and most importantly, would restore integrity and justice to the labor - management field wherever they had been denied or destroyed.

Federal Controls Trend Hit By Ike

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dwight D. Eisenhower said Friday the American system is being threatened by the increasing submission of the people to federal influence over their lives and activities.

The former President turned a critical eye not only on federal bureaucracy, but on government spending and the executive branch under President Kennedy in a speech before the annual convention of the National Association of Manufacturers.

Eisenhower was interrupted by enthusiastic applause when he declared that "this constantly increasing acceptance of — and submission to — the influence of the federal government over so many phases of our lives and activities is the most serious threat to our American system."

Applause from the capacity crowd of industrialists and their wives interrupted Eisenhower four other times during his relatively brief address.

Eisenhower said the public should view with anxiety "the plain truth . . . that citizens, communities and states, and even organizations and industries, are looking too much to Washington for the solution of their problems, especially those of an economic character."

He should take careful note of false prophets who urge us to change the goals of a free enterprise for those that place emphasis on creature comfort, on escape from risk, on relief from toil and from individual responsibility," the ex-President said.

QUESTIONS TIMING

GOP Hits Tardy Action On Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Bob Wilson, R-Calif., said Friday House members were told at a secret briefing six weeks before the November election that as many as ten Soviet jet bombers were in Cuba.

He also said that members of the House Armed Services and Foreign Relations committees were told by administration officials that work appeared to be under way on missile bases in Cuba, although it was not known whether Soviet missiles were there.

He said President Kennedy should have acted much earlier to end the threat of offensive weapons in Cuba.

Wilson, chairman of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee, said the Cuban crisis cost the Republicans as many as 20 House seats in the election.

He spoke at a luncheon meeting of the Republican National Committee and then elaborated on his remarks when questioned by newsmen.

Wilson said the public had been shown pictures of Soviet bombers and missiles being shipped out of Cuba. He questioned whether any pictures of such weapons being brought into Cuba prior to the election were suppressed.

Wilson, a member of the House Armed Services Committee, said that when the committee meets after Congress reconvenes he intends to ask whether the government knew ships were bringing Soviet missiles into Cuba.

He said there was no question in his mind that the United States has had every ship going in and out of Cuba under surveillance for the last year, at least.

Wilson said his objection was not to the action taken by Kennedy to rid Cuba of Soviet offensive weapons but to the timing of the action.

He told the luncheon gathering that he thinks the New Frontier "over estimates the public's gullibility if they think they are going to swallow manufactured crises" in the future.

In reply to newsmen's questions about his reference to a manufactured crisis, Wilson said "The point is that the inaction and the management of the news built up a crisis that had to be solved."

Wilson said the administration has made "no bones" about managing the news, but he declared "I don't think it will work again."

Gunboats Kill Fleeing Cubans

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Cuban gunboats sank a small boat with 20 persons fleeing Cuba, then shot the refugees in the water, a Cuban exile organization reported Friday.

The Student Revolutionary Directorate, based here, said most of the passengers, including six children, were killed. The others returned to Cuba and were jailed, the student group said.

Wilson, a member of the House Armed Services Committee, said that when the committee meets after Congress reconvenes he intends to ask whether the government knew ships were bringing Soviet missiles into Cuba.

He said there was no question in his mind that the United States has had every ship going in and out of Cuba under surveillance for the last year, at least.

Wilson said his objection was not to the action taken by Kennedy to rid Cuba of Soviet offensive weapons but to the timing of the action.

He told the luncheon gathering that he thinks the New Frontier "over estimates the public's gullibility if they think they are going to swallow manufactured crises" in the future.

In reply to newsmen's questions about his reference to a manufactured crisis, Wilson said "The point is that the inaction and the management of the news built up a crisis that had to be solved."

Wilson said the administration has made "no bones" about managing the news, but he declared "I don't think it will work again."

Former Nazi Admits Role In Executions

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP)—A former Nazi colonel admitted Friday he was in charge of Nazi gas vans in which 90,000 Jews were executed during World War II—but claimed "I was only a desk colonel."

The former Nazi officer, Walter Herman Julius Rauff, is fighting extradition to West Germany for trial after being picked up in southern Chile, where he was a prosperous businessman.

Chief Justice Rafael Fontecilla of the Supreme Court, who will rule on whether to hand him over to German authorities, said Rauff disclaimed responsibility for any killings.

"I signed papers brought to me but I never ordered or witnessed any killing of Jews," Rauff pleaded.

Official sources said Rauff was Nazi military chief in Italy in 1944-1945 when the war ended and was held for a time in an Allied detention camp near Rome but escaped. He fled to Syria, later went to Ecuador and entered Chile under his own name in 1958.

Rauff was under heavy guard when he was brought to the Supreme Court in downtown Santiago.

COMBAT UNITS

Soviets May Pull Out Cuba Troops

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States will insist that Russia remove the bulk of several thousand Soviet troops from Cuba now that offensive missiles and bombers have been taken out, informed sources said Friday.

For the moment, however, the administration was not pressing the troop issue with the Soviets, because Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev has indicated he intends to remove them of his own accord.

President Kennedy told his last news conference Nov. 20 that 20 that U. S. intelligence had a few days earlier discovered the presence of "Soviet ground combat units" in Cuba.

Kennedy said the United States was "informed" these troops were "associated with the protection of offensive weapons systems and will also be withdrawn in due course."

Kennedy did not say so, but it is now known he was informed of Russia's intention in a letter from Khrushchev.

Business In Politics

A trite but true saying is, "If you want something done, do it yourself." This probably was never more true in any field than in the field of business, particularly when it comes to guarding the right of the individual.

From a civic or political standpoint, the best way not to get anything done is to say, "You do it." This was graphically illustrated by Al Altwegg, business editor of the Dallas Morning News. Altwegg said:

"I was once co-owner of a weekly newspaper, and frequently my partner and I, in making our rounds of the community to solicit advertising and news, were told by a merchant that we ought to write an editorial about some local problem that was bothering the merchant.

"Say, you've got a point there," we would say to him. "Tell you what you do. Why don't you write us a letter about it and we will publish it?"

"Oh, I couldn't do that. I'm in business in this town," the merchant would say.

"And we used to reply: 'And what do you think we are?'"

"The trouble is that most people are entirely willing to have a newspaper stand up and argue for what it—and he, or she—believes to be right and important.

"But most of the time the person is afraid to speak up—down-right afraid to do what any free American citizen . . . still has the right to do. He's afraid he might alienate a customer or two."

American businessmen have fallen into a trap. Apparently business executives have willingly walked into this trap. They have let themselves be talked into believing that they should be non-political or, at the least, non-partisan.

If the American enterprise system disappears from our land, the main reason will be that American businessmen let it happen. They let it happen because they unthinkingly fooled themselves into the trap of believing that they could not fight, politically and partisanly, to preserve that system.

What many a businessman forgets is that if he does not stand up to be counted—to fight for what he believes in—he is likely to find he has no business, let alone any customers to worry about losing. He is likely to see a government agency operating his business while he is on the outside looking in.

Too many businessmen, without thinking, have bought the cliché that is so often voiced in: "Vote as you please, but please vote." That is an absurdity. Anyone who cares whether you vote should also care how you vote. Voting is not just a system of casting ballots for the purpose of saying we have voted. It is a system under which we try to select that which is best and to discard that which is worst.

Anyone who really cares about whether you vote must have preferences as to the candidates and beliefs concerning the issues. He must believe some issues are right and the opposing ones are wrong. Any businessman worth his salt should care how people vote. He should care enough to want them to vote right, as he sees it.

Some businessmen will say, "It's not legal for us to spend corporate funds on politics."

That is precisely the trap into which they have fallen.

Organized labor has been more clever in this respect than business, large or small. Labor has not permitted itself to be trapped into a position in which it could not act politically, and in partisan politics when that suited its interests. Labor officials have been clever enough to find ways to support financially and every other way, those candidates and those causes with which they have identified themselves. When did anyone ever see a labor organization that was afraid of taking a political stand in its own interests for fear of offending or alienating someone.

While businessmen have been standing around timidly, labor officials have asserted their American right to take part in politics.

That is why the struggle has been so one-sided. It is a wonder business hasn't lost its case long ago. It is a wonder it still has a chance to stand up and to try to save the system it believes in.

The American public as a whole is reasonable and ultimately fair. If a man, even a businessman, is reasonable and logical, most Americans will grant him the right to speak his piece and have his opinions, even though they may disagree with him. Often they will respect him more for standing up for the things he believes in. Usually he won't lose the customers he thinks he might lose, and sometimes he may even gain new ones because of the respect he has gained.

Businessmen must become political. They must stand up and fight for the things they believe in. They must fight those proposals they believe to be wrong. Businessmen have not only the right but the duty to speak out politically to preserve the American economic system.

What America is today and what Americans have today are attributable to the American economic system. Anything that undermines that system is to the detriment of all Americans, and must be resisted to the utmost by businessmen.

Brave Story Is Ended

A single American airline, in the last 18 months, has brought 100,000 Cubans out of Fidel Castro's national concentration camp. Other tens of thousands have been awaiting their turn to flee from slavery to freedom, despite the difficulties a stranger must meet in a foreign land.

Now their hopes are blasted. The flights ended when Castro announced that any aircraft other than communist coming to his island would be shot down.

One of the heroes of the little-known, heart-warming story has been Pan-American Airways, a private company, whose stockholders have picked up the tab for the many millions of dollars it has cost to keep open the 220-mile road to freedom between Havana and Miami.

Pan Am continued to fly two round-trip jetliners daily on the route. Havana-bound planes usually were empty, with every seat filled on the way back. The Miami News recently estimated the company's losses at $3,000 daily. But it kept the flights going to help the refugees.

Now Pan Am can fly the route no longer and a brave story of the compassion of free enterprise ends.

The community of Hundred, W. Va., received its name from its first settlers, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Church, who each lived past the century mark. Church died at the age of 109, Mrs. Church at 106.

Kenova, W. Va., gets its name from Kentucky, Ohio and West Virginia. It is located on a point where the three states converge.

Allen and Scott Russia-U.S. Line Sought Soviet Union Again Asking For Direct Air Route From Moscow To New York; Relations Better

Russia is again trying to establish a direct airline to the U.S. General G. S. Schetchikov, first deputy director of Aeroflot, and General B. M. Gayarovsky, communications head of the government-owned airline, have been in this country several weeks discussing such a plan with State Department and other authorities.

Accompanied by General A. M. Chizhov, air attaché of the Russian embassy, the two Aeroflot chiefs have conferred with Washington and New York airport officials on the leasing of landing, maintenance and other facilities.

Indicated aim of the Soviet is a direct air route between Moscow and New York, with landing rights at Washington's huge new Dulles International Airport.

Pan American Airways is greatly interested in this proposal. The U.S. line would like to establish direct air service to Russia in exchange for the granting of similar rights here.

The Kremlin has been seeking a direct air connection here for more than 2½ years.

These on-again-off-again negotiations were abruptly shelved several months ago, shortly before the historic showdown over the withdrawal of missiles and other offensive weapons in Cuba.

The resumption of these long-pending discussions is viewed as a significant indication of the improved relations between the two countries.

TRAVELING PLANS — If conditions permit, President Kennedy intends to make a trip to the Far East next year.

Definitely on his schedule would be a visit to Japan. That's what he told the group of Japanese cabinet members at his White House luncheon for them early this week. Foreign Minister Masayoshi Ohira gave hearty assurances the President would be "enthusiastically welcomed."

"If everything works out right, as I hopefully believe it will," the President told his Japanese guests, "I look forward to doing quite a bit of foreign traveling in 1963. These plans contemplate a trip to the Far East, and foremost among the countries I want to go to is Japan."

"I have received several invitations, and it is my earnest desire to have the opportunity to accept them. Naturally, these plans are still very tentative. But they are definitely in mind."

In President Eisenhower's last year in office, he embarked on a visit to Japan, but turned back after a succession of violent Communist-led riots. Subsequently, one of the leaders of these mass disturbances expressed apologies and regrets. Earlier this year there were reports the former President might go to Japan, but the plans did not materialize.

White House insiders say the President is thinking in terms of an extended trip that would include Alaska, Japan, Okinawa, the Philippines, India, Pakistan, and possibly Indonesia.

POLITICALS — Ted Kennedy, 30-year-old brother of the President, has yet to take the oath of office as U. S. Senator, but there is no limit to his vaunting ambitions. He has already applied for a seat on the much-sought Foreign Relations Committee, and now he is aspiring to a place on the even more powerful Appropriations Committee. It's virtually unprecedented for a "rookie" to be named to either of these top committees, but young Kennedy seems to be confident he has a good chance to make one of them.

If he does, a number of considerably more senior senators will be very unhappy. They are seeking these prizes, too, and have a lot more claim to them than newly elected Kennedy, whose term only runs for two years, when he has to campaign again. Foremost among those with a strong claim for a seat on the Appropriations Committee is Senator Clair Engle, D-Calif., who has been a member of Congress since 1944, and before being elected to the Senate was chairman of the House Interior Affairs Committee. Able and hard-working, Engle has the backing of Senate Democratic leaders for an appropriations assignment.

Former Vice President Nixon is raising a lot of puzzled eyebrows in G.O.P. circles. In his spectacular "farewell" press conference, Nixon avowed he was through with politics. Yet every successful Republican member of Congress has received a letter of congratulations from him — and quite a number of them are privately wondering how come and why!

Sam Pryor, able and popular vice president of Pan American Airways, is retiring next April. Formerly National Republican committee man from Connecticut, Pryor plans to move his permanent home to Hawaii. Publicly, the White House is saying nothing about the 1963 San Francisco mayoralty race, which already is at fever pitch. But privately, lieutenants of the President are making no bones they favor Representative John Shelley — an original Kennedy supporter. Although just re-elected for an eighth term in the House, Shelley is already busily running for mayor. He has opened a headquarters, and is zealously hustling for votes.

James Landis, one-time dean of Harvard Law School, New Deal brain-truster, former chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission and the Maritime Commission, and attorney for former Ambassador Joseph Kennedy, father of the President, has his eye set on being general counsel of the billion-dollar communications satellite corporation authorized by the last session of Congress. The corporation, to be legally established by February 1, will create a number of big-paying jobs. Already there is much backstage scrambling for these juicy plums.

Like the proverbial nine lives of a cat, that 1960 campaign deficit of the Democratic National Committee is still hanging around. Another $100-a-plate shindig is being organized to "wipe it out." It will take place January 18, and be in the form of a variety show with numerous stage, movie and radio-TV stars performing gratis. Top guests will be President Kennedy and Vice President Johnson. National Chairman John Bailey, asked the current size of the debt, replied smilingly, "I'm not sure, because all the bills aren't in yet." He did not explain this astonishing delay.

BASCOM TIMMONS Zippy Mail Near To Be About 24 Hours Faster When Sent Long Distances

The digit will take a leap forward next year on its way to controlling American life. Telephone experts, seized with digititis, have joined forces with the U. S. Post Office Department to spread the digit into mail addressing . . . and eventually digitize the country.

And the Post Office Department — not a progressive institution — has rushed in a fever to advertise its new program with posters and large label buttons . . . and a slogan — ZIP — Zoning Improvement Plan.

The symbol for this new phase in postal operations is a Mr. Zip, who strongly resembles the familiar cartoon salesman of warts and volts. This would seem an attempt to suggest mails with the speed of electric current.

However, this zippy mail, will only be "about 24 hours faster when going long distances." Postmaster General J. Edward Day has said.

ZIP boasts five digits. The first digit is an area, such as the Southwest. The second and third ones specify a state, like Texas, or part of a state or a major city, for example, the Houston - Galveston area. The fourth and fifth digits indicate a city zone, a small town or a particularly large company, like Humble Oil and Refining Company.

ZIP will start — probably next July — as an exclusive sort of system-dealing only in first class mail and magazines. All mailers of over 200 letters a week are asked to join the club. Membership is obtained by placing the code number in the lower right hand corner of all envelopes and magazine mailing labels.

No Post Office official will comment on what becomes of letters with the number in the lower left hand corner.

Right now no area or city or firm has been designated a digit. But the Post Office is hopeful that the country will be digitized before the system gets underway. Day is already worried about the system, because his telephone company cohorts say five digits only allow 100,000 variations. But, a sprinkling of additional digits and a letter or two and a lot of people could become envelope numbers.

Fearful that this system may also devour him, Day admitted that digititis seemed to be getting the upper hand in the American way of life.

Shortly after the announcement one local man packed his bags for retirement to Iceland. He warned he saw a trend, pointing out,

"It all began for me when I went into the Army and got a number. By the time I was captured in Germany all I could remember was that I was a number. 'I got home after the War (WW-II) and I got my social security number. I moved into an apartment at 34527 12th Street, N.W., 9, where the janitor called me 7-B."

"The telephone company went and spread the numbers rack and made me 359-4620 and if you call me long distance I'm 202-359-4620."

"Now the Internal Revenue Service tells me I'm going to get a nice digit number as a taxpayer. 'You can't see me anymore for all the numbers. I am a fraction of my former self."

"And not just that — the confusion wears on me. The telephone company has printed my number by someone else's name and I'm always getting his calls. Once my bank got my account number mixed up and a $75 check was cashed on my account by accident."

"So I'm sending back my credit cards and leaving and my last number will be for my plane seat."

Sylvia Porter 'Dream Kitchens' Already Here But Not Many Housewives Installing Them

The appliance manufacturers constantly dazzle us with promises of a work-free, worry-free home, but when are those "dream kitchens" of the future going to arrive? Appliances are being turned out in ever more intriguing colors, sizes and shapes, but are they really any better than a decade ago?

Here, from Herman L. Weiss, vice president and group executive for consumer products of General Electric, are some answers about home appliances which may startle you.

Porter: Where are those "dream" appliances of the future?

Weiss: Actually, the "dream kitchen" of the future is here today, but 90 per cent of America's households haven't caught up with it.

The future may hold refinements like phonivision or transistorized motor detectors in lawns to turn on sprinklers automatically or home vacuum cleaning systems in which the housewife would merely set a few dials to "program" her vacuum cleaner, then leave the house and come home to find the job done. These are all technically feasible.

While it isn't practical to produce, we have developed a "Rube Goldberg" machine which could take frozen food out of the freezer and put it into the oven before the housewife gets home. The day surely will come when we will have home dry cleaning units to stand next to your washers and dryers. Right now it would be possible to have cooled closets for your furs or clothes conditioning closets in which the heat and moisture are controlled to remove wrinkles.

Porter: I'm a modern housewife, but my kitchen is no "dream."

Weiss: That's the trouble. Most housewives think defrosting is a loathsome chore but the readily available automatic defrosting refrigerators are not widely enjoyed. Very few families are currently enjoying the benefits of air conditioning or of "programmed" ranges with their automatic timers. Many homes have isolated labor-saving appliances, but the kitchens are not properly laid out to make effective use of them.

We are increasingly looking at the home as a system. We ask what are the average housewife's daily chores, what is her schedule, what does she want from us? Then we work with the architects and designers of homes to be built in the future.

It costs far less to air condition a home when it is being built than it does to do it later, and the same is true of a well-designed kitchen.

Porter: How should consumers shop for home appliance systems?

Weiss: Consumer ignorance on how to buy home appliance systems is a major problem which manufacturers are trying to overcome through educating dealers and through working closely with electric utilities and builders, so we can coordinate appliance products with actual home-building and installation.

Many Americans simply do not understand what an up-to-date kitchen looks like or how to go about acquiring one. They should ask questions, go see a modern kitchen before buying.

Porter: Why should appliances cost so much more than they did a decade ago?

Weiss: Because of the constant number of new features being engineered into them which greatly increase the value of the appliances. Actually, taking comparable products — non-automatic defrost refrigerators — prices have decreased. Between 1950 and March of this year, the consumer price index had gone up 25 per cent while the household appliance index had gone down 2 per cent.

Porter: What are manufacturers doing to improve service?

Weiss: We are putting increased emphasis on building better products to start with to eliminate many repairs.

But with appliances becoming more complex, they will continue to need service. Since we realize that nothing is more annoying to the housewife than waiting for the repairman, we now have in major cities radio-dispatched service trucks which enable us to give one to two-day service on most priority calls.

Appliance buyers also should take annual service contracts to allow manufacturers to give them better service and to distribute such routine jobs as changing air conditioning filters through the year instead of facing impossible peak loads on the first hot day.

British Nuclear Device Tested

LONDON (AP) — Britain tested of atomic energy for mutual de- a low-yield nuclear device in con- sultation with the United States in Nevada on Friday, it was official- ly announced.

The test was announced by the United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority.

It already had been the subject of political controversy here since of its advent was announced when hopes of East-West agreement to ban tests appeared high.

The test was conducted by U.S. and British specialists at the re- quest of the United Kingdom, said the Atomic Energy Commission said in Washington. It is the second in population by 24 per cent, such test carried out in Nevada while the country's total rose under provisions of a 1968 agree- ment for cooperation on the uses eight years.

Governor-Elect Yields To Wife

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Gov- elect John W. King said Friday the walls of his statehouse office are going to be green—not pink. He informed painters his wife had changed his mind.

The workmen spent three days this week giving the office a fresh coat of pink paint. This was on orders of Gov. Wesley Powell with King's advance approval.

But the governor-elect said Fri- day his wife informed him the pink does not match the wild plum of the new rugs in the executive chambers.

So it's going to be light green.

East German Officer Flees With Family

BERLIN (AP)—A major in the East German army intelligence defected to West Berlin today, West Berlin police reported.

He rowed himself, his wife, their 9-year-old daughter and two other passengers in a rubber boat across a fog-shrouded river on the southwest border of the city.

Police described the other two passengers merely as "a friend and his wife."

As is usual with military defectors, the major was turned over to the U.S. authorities for interrogation.

The major was a special investigation officer attached to the East German border guard surrounding West Berlin, police said. His job was to investigate border incidents. He could be valuable to American intelligence.

British Leader Blasts Acheson For Statement

LONDON (UPI)—Prime Minister Harold Macmillan said Friday former U.S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson fell into the same error other people had been making for 400 years when he said Britain's role as an independent power is "about played out."

Macmillan's sharp retort to Acheson was made available to the press by his office. It came in a letter from Macmillan to Lord Chandos, president of the Institute of Directors, after Acheson's speech at West Point this week created a heated controversy here. The institute is a group of leading British business executives.

"Mr. Acheson has fallen into an error which has been made by quite a lot of people in the course of the last 400 years, including Philip of Spain, Louis XIV, Napoleon, the Kaiser and Hitler," Macmillan said.

Acheson "appeared to denigrate the resolution and will of Britain and the British people," he said.

few survivors ducking into a small depression or behind the houses in the area. They rolled the bodies of their comrades into ricks and fought from behind the barricade of human flesh which slowly froze as night came on.

Some of the Federals hung on the fringes of Marye's Heights all night in the bitter cold. As the wounded died their bodies were piled on the barricades or propped frozen stiff as dumb sentries.

Such was the "slaughterpen" or "valley of death" called the battle of Fredericksburg. The defeat crushed Burnside. That night he proposed to put himself at the head of his old Ninth Corps and charge the heights again, perhaps hoping he would die at its head on one last fling at victory. His corps commanders talked him out of it.

All day the 14th and all day the 15th the armies lay in their tracks. On the night of the 15th Burnside withdrew his army across the Rappahannock without Lee knowing about it until the sun rose and burned away the fog.

By MERTON T. AKERS
United Press International
The battle of Fredericksburg, fought on Dec. 13, 1862, has been called a "slaughterpen."

It was that but it also was much more.

—A cheap Confederate victory in terms of casualties.

The downfall of Maj. Gen. Ambrose E. Burnside, the fourth Union commander in the East to splinter his military reputation against the Army of Northern Virginia.

—A display of sheer courage by Union troops unsurpassed in any Civil War battle.

—Another indecisive battle after which the Army of the Potomac retired to recuperate and the Confederates remained on the defensive — the same situation which had occurred after the Peninsula, Second Manassas and Maryland campaigns.

After that bloody 13th — a Saturday — the war picture remained the same except that 1,879 Americans would never fight again — 1,284 Federals, 595 Confederates. The bodies of the Union dead were frozen into the two and one-half miles of red flats below the heights on the west bank of the Rappahannock River at the devastated city of Fredericksburg, Va.

Fredericksburg was not the deadliest one-day battle of the war — Antietam (Sharpsburg) holds that bloody honor.

But when the North learned the full story — 9,600 Union soldiers wounded and 1,769 missing in addition to those killed in action for a grand total of 12,653 — its morale took another plunge.

Richmond's elation bounded high with the victory. Its casualty total of 5,309 was less than half the Union losses.

But the cold truth was that the North could replace its losses, as big as they were; the Confederates could not.

The battle of Fredericksburg was Burnside's idea. When he succeeded Maj. Gen. George B. McClellan early in November of '62 he realized he was expected to fight and soon. He moved the Army of the Potomac from its position just east of the Blue Ridge Mountains eastward to Fredericksburg.

The movement was well screened, so well that Confederate Gen. Robert E. Lee, whose forces were divided, lost several days trying to fathom Burnside's maneuvers.

But the pontoon bridges which Burnside had ordered to cross the Rappahannock were delayed. Why they were delayed is disputed yet. Likely the reason was a mixup in orders with Maj. Gen. Henry W. Halleck, commander of the Union armies, bearing a share. The error gave Lee time to move into defensive positions.

On Dec. 11 the Union army began to lay the bridges across the river, about 400 feet wide at that point.

On the Union left — downriver from Fredericksburg — three bridges were flung across overnight without opposition despite a half of inch of ice on the river.

But in front of Fredericksburg the story was different. There Confederate sharpshooters picked off the Union pontooners. The Union infantry made 14 attacks, each rolled back with the tilery barrage failed to dislodge the marksmen. Only when 200 volunteers from the Seventh Michigan and the 80th New York paddled across the river in pontoons were the Mississippians cleaned out. Then the bridges were completed but by that time it was 4:30 p.m., too late for action that day.

The next morning — the 12th — a friendly fog lay over the river and concealed the crossing of Burnside's army. Part of it pushed into Fredericksburg proper and occupied the town.

By afternoon when the fog lifted, most of the Union army was in position, drawn up in battle order on the flats.

If Burnside had been in a position to attack early that day, the story of Fredericksburg might have been different for Lee still did not have all his forces in the line that curved back of Fredericksburg on the ridges. Two of his divisions — D. H. Hill's and Jubal Early's — still were on their way from downriver.

But Burnside did not attack that day.

In fact he changed his orders. Instead of attacking the Confederates right on Dec. 13 where Lt. Gen. Thomas J. (Stonewall) Jackson commanded, with two full corps, he used only a part of his forces.

With hands playing and banners snapping in the wind, Maj. Gen. George G. Meade's division of 5,000 men, supported by two other divisions, attacked Jackson's segment of the line under cover of a fog after an hour and a half barrage from the Federal artillery, posted across the river on Stafford Heights.

Meade's attack found a hole in Jackson's line.

The bluecoats rushed through and it appeared the Confederate line was being rolled back. But at this point the line was three layers deep in Rebel troops.

Meade, with little help from the supporting divisions, held on for 20 minutes, but pulled back in the face of counter attacks.

The big show was at Marye's Heights in the center of the line directly in the rear of Fredericksburg.

Here Longstreet commanded the Confederates. He posted a brigade of Georgians under Brig. Gen. T. R. R. Cobb behind a stone wall which rimmed a sunken road. The wall was about four feet high, ideal breastworks for standing off assaults.

Cobb had about 2,400 men, all seasoned soldiers. Cobb was a lawyer rather than a military man but his fighting record was good. He was a brother of Howell Cobb, Secretary of Treasury under President Buchanan, and was one of those instrumental in taking Georgia out of the Union.

He died behind that stone wall from a leg wound. But before he died his men gave a good account of themselves.

Beginning at 11 a.m. and lasting until seven twilight, Burnside threw seven divisions of infantry at Marye's Heights, brigade by brigade. As one brigade was shattered by Confederate musket and cannon fire from behind the stone wall — about a half mile long — another charged through, over and around the Confederate sharpshooters of dead and wounded only to meet the same fate.

The Union infantry made 14 attacks, each rolled back with the

35 Cases Heard In Monroe Court

Thirty-two cases involving 29 persons were handled in Monroe city court Friday by acting Judge James A. Hobbs.

George Bailey, 51, of general delivery, St. Maurice, was fined $425 and court costs for driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages.

A 27-year-old West Monroe man, Jewel Wright, of route three box 186, was fined $300 and costs for simple battery, $25 and costs.

cient food and water, and turnpike officials said sections of the pike on the main route between New York, Philadelphia and Chicago were being reopened Friday night.

States of emergency were declared at Fostoria and Brunswick, Ohio, and in several Cleveland suburbs.

Three hundred persons took shelter at a high school, the YMCA and private home in Fostoria when they were stranded in cars and trucks. Civil defense and disaster units helped get the snowbound travelers to shelter.

Sixty bus passengers and a driver found haven in an American Legion hall near Toledo, Ohio when their vehicle stuck in the snow.

The storm took a rapidly mounting toll of lives. A United Press International count showed 40 deaths blamed on the wintry blast—14 in Michigan, 8 in Ohio, 5 in Pennsylvania, 3 each in Tennessee, Illinois, Indiana and West Virginia and 1 in New York.

Seven other persons were dead or presumed dead in accidents in a heavy, traffic-slowing fog on the West Coast.

A minor traffic accident at an Ohio Turnpike interchange near North Olmsted triggered a 10-mile long traffic jam involving an estimated 200 cars and trucks.

A special train was made up to carry medicine on a mercy run to a snow-trapped family at Alameda, Ohio.

Fifteen inches of snow hit Catawug County in New York's "snow belt," and the weather bureau predicted up to 15 inches of fresh snow would fall before the storm subsided.

Most of the storm victims died in accidents on snow-packed highways, fires blamed on overheated stoves in the first big arctic blast of the season or as a result of overexertion while scooping the mountainous drifts.

All Cleveland schools closed. The Cleveland airport shut down. Factories shut down in Cleveland, Lima, Sandusky and other Ohio cities. Bus service between Cleveland and Columbus was suspended.

Residents of Olean, N.Y., and Elkins, W. Va., waded through 14 inches of snow. Bradford, Pa., had 13 inches. The Bay City-Saginaw area of Michigan had a foot.

Rural schools closed throughout Michigan and in sections of northern Indiana where up to eight inches fell. Detroit police reported so many fender-scraping accidents they could not respond to them all.

A cold wave speared deep into Dixie. The mercury plummeted to 22 at Tallahassee, Fla., and 21 at a few spots in northern Florida. But the state's big winter vegetable and citrus crops escaped damage, the federal-state frost warning service reported, and a gradual warmup was expected to erase the danger.

Elsewhere in the South, residents of Atlanta, Ga., shivered in 20-degree readings, it was 28 at Raleigh, N. C., and Richmond, Va.

For the second consecutive day, a thick fog blanketed California's Central Valley and the San Francisco Bay area, closing airports, and creating traffic and maritime hazards.

Negro Booked After Accident Here On Friday

A 25-year-old Negro was booked by Monroe police on charges of reckless driving and no driver's license following a minor two-vehicle accident Friday.

Ivory Pitts, of 2709 Calypso St., Monroe, was booked following the collision at the intersection of Grammont and 11th Streets, about 5:05 p.m.

According to investigating officers, Pitts was traveling north on 11th Street when he collided with a vehicle operated by Gerald McDaniel, 18, of 618 Oak St., Monroe. At the time of the mishap, McDaniel, headed west on Grammont, was stopped for a stop sign.

Shoplifting charges were lodged against Cheryl Frank McHenry, 18, Negro, of 1407 DeSiard St., Monroe, after she was apprehended in a local Montgomery-Ward Department store. She was later released under $350 bond.

Carl T. Kinney, 27, of 1801 Emerson St., Monroe, was booked on a warrant for speeding. His bond was set at $75.

West Monroe police arrested a 17-year-old Monroe Negro, Richard E. Monroe, of 1205 Olive St., on a charge of theft.

Eugene K. Wilson, 21, of route four box 588, West Monroe, was booked on charges of burglary and trespassing.

Docket Is Light In West Monroe Court Activity

City court activity was light in West Monroe Friday with only nine cases being processed by Judge John McCormick.

Two persons were fined $300 and court costs on charges of driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages. They are Byron E. Hammon, 40, of 1308 Brester St., Ruston, and Clyde B. Huey, 52, of route three box 315, West Monroe.

Three fines were levied for reckless driving. Robert Sewell Jr., 27, Negro, of 3921 Mercy St., Monroe, was fined $25 and costs, while both Peggy J. Thompson, 18, of 512 N. 3rd St., West Monroe, and Charles L. Aulds, 26, of route one, Calhoun, were fined $20 and costs.

A 37-year-old West Monroe Negro was fined $200 and costs for disturbing the peace by appearing in an intoxicated condition. Another person forfeited a $50 bond for disturbing the peace.

A $5 bond was forfeited for running a red light and a $3 bond was forfeited for running a stop sign.

Relatives Keeping Lonely Mine Vigil

CARMICHAELS, Pa. (AP)—Al-Edith Seper, whose husband, Charles, 44, and her brother are trapped below, says: "I hate mines. I've always hated the mines."

She tries to speak firmly but emotion creeps into her voice.

The women wait with some two dozen other persons in a steel-sheeted room adjacent to the mine shaft. Some sleep. Others gaze at the wall, the floor.

New people enter the room. They file in solemnly, stamping snow from their boots. Piles of food on the counter mostly go untouched.

Someone brings in a newspaper, and it passes from person to person. They read it knowing there is no news in it for them.

After a while, a company man comes into the room and speaks. He says the rescuers are doing all they can. A few people nod in agreement.

It was the second straight success for the stubby, three-stage Minuteman and indicated the rocket is well over the troubles that caused a series of failures and grounded it for a month in October and November.

Mother Charged In $15,000 Theft

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. (UPI)—home to find out why the Fords, a mother of 12 who nursed two with 12 children ranging in age from 4 to 25, had enough money held Friday on charges of stealing up to $15,000 in savings they illac.

The thief left far more than was taken. Detectives searching the home where the sisters had lived since they retired from elementary school teaching positions years ago found several more cans stuffed with more than $28,000 in currency.

Mrs. Ford's husband, Willie, 58, also was jailed on grand larceny charges, although Mrs. Ford took full responsibility in a signed statement and indicated orally her husband had nothing to do with it.

The spinster sisters were shocked at disclosure of the theft. Miss Nettie said they "couldn't believe Mrs. Ford had taken the money."

Police discovered the thefts when they went to the Moorhead

Northeast Hosts Bulldogs Today

From The Pressbox
The Search
With Rick Bryan

... Every team is always looking for that college quarterback with pro potential. They don't come often and you can't afford to let one slip by. The secret is to be able to recognize the difference between an All-American college quarterback and a potential pro."

These words, from Will Walls, director of personnel for the Pittsburgh Steelers, are the heart of the big sports story in the December 10 Newsweek, "Quarterback Quest."

For the pro scouts, the article continues, the maximum quarterback must be big and tough, throw long and short from the pocket or on the run, think and adjust quickly, and exude leadership.

What the story omits is that the maximum quarterback must also consistently get first down on third down. Needless to say, maximum quarterbacks don't come every day.

Faced with the most publicized group of college quarterbacks (though not necessarily the best), the professionals agree about one senior according to Newsweek. That one is Terry Baker of Oregon State, the Heisman Trophy winner.

"Each year," Newsweek quoted Green Bay's Dick Voris as saying, "there are two or three college players who you know are going to be pro stars. Baker is definitely one of them."

Then Voris drops the bombshell. "If he doesn't make it a professional football player, he'll be one of the draft."

Teammates

Slaughter, who signed with Denver Thursday, will find himself teaming up with Northeast State tackle Ross Nolan. Nolan, who is slated for offensive guard duty, was also drafted by the Broncos and signed earlier.

Other Gulf States Center players drafted were McNeese center Walter Burd, fourth round in the NFL, and 16th in the AFL; Slaughter's teammate, end Jerry Griffin by Houston, and Northwestern's Jackie Smith by St. Louis.

In addition to big Juniors Buchanan, Grambling draftees

Another Way

Last Saturday's Army-Navy game showed a nationwide TV audience one thing. There is a way to win besides the three yards and a cloud of dust. "We don't win games, we keep from losing them," kind of philosophy — if you have the material.

Doubtless a lack of the right kind of material is the basis for much of the Paul Dietzel or Paul Bryant type thinking in football. It's foolhardy to pass if your aerial bombs are going to wind up interceptions. But it's a long, hard march to drive 80 yards a couple of yards at a time. And any mistake, a penalty, a fumble, can stop the march.

Then too, many coaches have

Predicting Wrapup

Last week's final fling at football predicting resulted in 13 right choices in 15 attempts for 86.6 percent. This left the season mark 257-87-14 for 74.7.

The best bit of selecting for the year was zeroing in on the trend in Gulf States Conference football the last few weeks of the season.

It started with picking McNeese State to upset Northwestern, the next week we picked Southeastern to beat McNeese (by the right point total of three GSC games this spread) and correctly forecasted Northeast to beat Louisiana Tech. A question despite howls of persecution arising from the Indian dressing no doubt.

Recreation Basketball

The Monroe Recreation Department will host a Basketball Clinic Saturday beginning at 9:30 a.m. Coach Benny Hollis will conduct the clinic. Some of the phases that will be covered are dribbling, shooting baskets, zone and man defenses. Coach Hollis will put on numerous demonstrations 40-33 with Payne scoring 10 for the winners and Gates scoring six for the losers. Richey scored six for the winners and Gates scored six for the losers. Richey scored six for the winners and Gates scored six for the losers. Richey scored six for the winners and Gates scored six for the losers.

The clinic will be held at the Liberty Recreation Center 1700 over Temple, 31-26. Welch scored 18 are urged to attend. In Church A league action trotters whalloped the Rams, 7-3. Friday, Liberty downed Trinity. Three players accounted for the 37-21 with Calhoun scoring 17 for winners' points and Miller scored the winners and McGuffie scored two for the losers. The Spark-

Battle With State Starts At 7:30 P.M.

Gulf States Conference champion Northeast State plays host to polished, powerful Mississippi State, Southeastern Conference kingpins, Saturday night in Brown Mississippi State, beaten only once last winter, rules a heavy favorite over Lenny Fant's Indians, who have won four of six games this year. State is 2-0 for the year, having routed Arkansas A&M, a club that earlier beat Northeast, by a 90-55 count in its

Probable starters:

J. Walker (6-4) F. L. Mitchell (6-4)

R. Cook (6-5) C. B. Shows (6-7)

opener and downing another Gulf States team, Louisiana Tech, 90-61, in Ruston Thursday night.

Northeast and Mississippi State meet for the first time last season with State taking an 89-79 victory in Starkville, Miss.

State is expected to play tonight without star guard W. D. "Red" Stroud, who missed the Thursday game because of a pulled muscle. Stroud averaged 15.9 points, made all Southeastern and was named the circuit's most valuable player last year.

Stroud's place will probably be taken by Aubrey Nichols, a 6-1 junior letterman.

In the absence of Stroud, State's big scoring punch is expected from 6-4 captain Joe Dan Gold and high-jumping Doug Hutton, a 5-10 guard. Center Bobby Shows (6-7), a tough rebounder, will complete the starting lineup.

Mitchell, who led State in scoring last season, put in 29 points against A&M and counted 19 Thursday. Hutton got 16 against Tech, Shows 14 and Gold 13.

Northeast also has an injured player, 6-5 center Robert Cook, but he is expected to play. Cook, the Indians' top rebounder and No. 2 scorer, suffered a head cut in Monday's game against Delta State.

Cook will be joined in the starting lineup by forwards Jimmy Walker (6-4) and Milton Linder (6-3) and guards Stuart Toms and Jerry Sallee, both 5-11. Lenny Fant's regulars include three seniors while Walker is a junior and Sallee a sophomore.

Mitchell, Gold, Shows and Stroud are State seniors and Hutton and Nichols Juniors.

Walker is Northeast's leading scorer with a 15.2 average and is second to Cook in rebounding. Cook is averaging 12.3 points, Sallee 12.2, Toms 12.0 and Linder 11.5.

A Northeast string of 11 straight home court victories will be on the line Saturday. The Indians have not been beaten on the Brown court since William Carey turned the trick, 85-71, in last year's Northeast Christmas Tournament. In regular season completion, Northeast has not lost at home since February of 1961, a string of 15 games.

Mississippi State has been among the Southeastern and national leaders regularly since James H. "Babe" McCarthy became head coach seven years ago. The Bulldogs have won three of the last four SEC titles and were ranked fourth in the nation last season. Currently ranked fifth.

Saturday's game will be the first of four straight home games for the Indians. They will meet William Carey here Monday evening, Delta State Friday and East Texas Baptist Dec. 17.

Griggs. Jackson led the Rebels' scoring efforts with 14 points while Griggs followed with 12.

Fans never saw the lead increased by more than 10 points. Most of the margins held by either team at any given point in the contest were by only two to four points.

James Edgar, a 5-10 guard tallied on four field goals and six foul shots to lead the Lions in scoring with 14 points. Two Ouachita players, Darryl Barnes, a forward and senior Jamie Hudson followed Edgar with ten points each.

The victory gives the Rebels a 4-3 season record while Ouachita suffered its second loss of the year against three wins.

Five Ouachita players went the distance for the Lions while the Rebels used two additional players other than their regular starters.

West Monroe took the lead early in the first period but never held more than a four-point lead over the visiting Lions and the score stood tied 13-13 at the end of the period. West Monroe tallied in the period on six field goals and one of two free throws while Ouachita hit on five of six free tosses and pushed in four field goals.

The second quarter saw the score tied three times with Ouachita coming from behind to tie the Rebels twice and West Monroe tying the visitors once. Jackson lifted a field goal into the net with 14 seconds remaining in the half to break a 22-22 deadlock and give the Rebels a 24-22 half time lead.

THE REBS WENT ON A STRONG scoring spree early in the third quarter and gained a 10-point lead before Ouachita came back with their own scoring fit in the middle of the period and cut the lead to one point with 38 seconds left. Johnson sank a foul shot at this point and again the Rebs held a two point lead (38-36) over the Lions.

Ouachita continued to trail until 3:56 remained in the final stanza when Nickie Mirza dropped in two foul shots to give the Lions a 44-43 edge. From this point the lead changed four times. Each change was only a one-point margin and the score was pushed to 49-48 with the Rebs ahead.

Within 13 seconds Jesse Kinman and Johnson scored on layups to give the hosts a 51-48 lead with 58 seconds remaining.

Ouachita's Barnes drew a one-and-one free throw chance with 43 seconds remaining but missed.

MOST SOUGHT - AFTER

Stovall To Listen To Pros' Offers

By JIM BECKER

NEW YORK (AP) — Jerry Stovall of Louisiana State, the most sought-after running back in college football, said Friday he has no preference for either of the rival pro football leagues. "I'll listen to both offers carefully before I make up my mind," he said.

Stovall, the 194-pound All-American halfback who runs with both speed and power, was the No. 1 draft pick of the St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League and the New York Titans of the American Football League.

Stovall's tackle teammate, Fred Miller, drafted by both the Baltimore Colts of the NFL and the Dallas Texas of the AFL, echoed the same indecision.

"I'll weigh both offers," Miller said. "It isn't only the money. It's where they plan to play you and many other things that I'd rather keep to myself at this time."

Both Stovall and Miller are in New York for a variety of football functions.

It was clear that both have given a lot of attention to the playing personnel on the pro teams that drafted them.

"The Cardinals have a great running back in John David Crow," Stovall said. "But with any pro team you join you can expect to find great players."

"You've got to accept that, and try to make a position for yourself."

Miller said he thought the pros were planning to use him at defensive end.

Stovall, a 6-2 senior from West Monroe, La., who has a neck about the shape and size of the Washington Monument, is a pre-dental student.

"I'm planning to play pro ball to make enough money to complete dental school," he said. "I'm not going to try to make it my long term livelihood."

Stovall wears horned-rim glasses off the gridiron and is an easy, articulate conversationalist.

I've never seen the pros play, except on television," he said. "I realize the NFL has many things to offer, as the older league, but I have no preference for either league. I wouldn't say either has all the best players, because any pro football player can be considered one of the best."

Both St. Louis and the Titans telephoned me after the draft and told me they had selected me and would be making offers. I'm waiting to hear the details.

"I've got a bowl game to play (the Cotton Bowl against Texas) and then I'm going to Honolulu to play in the Hula Bowl there. I'll decide when I get back."

Reserve Edges Thibodaux 7-0 To Enter Finals

RESERVE (Special) — Halfback Gus Madere galloped 83 yards to a touchdown with a punt return to lead Reserve into the AA State Championship finals with a 7-0 victory over Thibodaux here Friday night.

The Wildcats will meet Neville, defending State AA Champions this Friday night for the title.

A steady downpour mired the semi-final playoff contest for the south Louisiana AA championship.

Until Madere's brilliant touchdown journey down the middle of a muddy Leon Godechaux High field midway in the third quarter, the contest was well on its way to a defensive standoff with first downs and penetrations looming as heavy factors.

But Madere's TD jaunt settled the matter while first downs came out all even in the contest at four each.

Punting proved a big factor in the fray with Reserve's Mike Madere turning in a top performance for the Wildcats as he boomed a pair of crucial boots which kept Thibodaux backed against the wall.

Madere kicked six times for a fine 39.5 average.

Halfback Norman Millet almost sent the Wildcats out front early in the game with a fancy step-ping 94-yard run from scrimmage to the Thibodaux three-yard line. Millet was hauled down from behind by Tiger halfback Olen Zeringue to prevent the score and Thibodaux' rock-ribbed defense held the Wildcats off on four straight attempts to cross into paydirt.

Meillet, who carried 14 times in the Reserve effort picked up 116 yards to give the Wildcats an advantage in rushing yardage over the Tigers, Reserve collecting 153 - net yards rushing to Thibodaux' 72.

Field, Campbell Guests Of Quarterback Club

By STUART HILL

West Monroe High School's varsity football team and their parents will be honored tonight at a special family night sponsored by the Quarterback Club.

The program, with Louisiana State University's Jimmy Field and Bo Campbell as special guests, is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m., with serving to begin at 7:05 in the cafeteria and a social hour to be held between 6:30 and 7 in the gymnasium.

The social hour is designed to allow members of the Rebel football team and their parents to become acquainted with Field and Campbell.

As a special treat, those attending will be in an extended audience in a telephone conversation with LSU halfback Jerry Stovall, who is in New York where he is receiving honors as an All-American.

Stovall who starred as a prepster at West Monroe will speak via telephone over a monitor system which will allow everyone to hear, according to club president Tommy Head.

2ND SEC FOE

Rebels Invade Louisiana Tech

RUSTON (Special) — Louisiana Tech's cagers play their second straight southeastern conference foe here Saturday night when they tangle with Ole Miss.

The Techsters were beaten, but not disgraced in their opener against fifth - ranked Mississippi State Thursday night, losing 80-61 to the hot shooting Maroons.

Coach Cecil Crowley's Techsters, out-rebounded 42-26, were down 22 points once in the first half, but rallied to cut the margin to nine points after intermission. State's rebounding, torrid field shooting (57 per cent), and free throw accuracy (18 of 22) told the tale.

Coach Crowley paid tribute to Babe McCarthy's Maroons. "They have the best team we've played in the 20 years I've been coaching at Tech," he said.

The Tech coach said he was not pleased with his team's shooting accuracy, part of which he credited to first game jitters. "We showed determination and desire and our ball handling generally was good," Crowley said.

Bulldog cagers hit only 25 per cent in the first half, but an improved second half pushed it up to 35 per cent for the game.

"We've been shooting a lot better than that and I look for a good performance Saturday night against Ole Miss," Crowley said.

The Rebels have one of the top individual performers in the SEC in junior guard Donnie Kessinger, who averaged 24 points per game last season.

Mel and El Edmonds, twin guards are back for another year also. Up front, new Rebel Coach Eddie Crawford will have 6-4

COUSHATTA Soph Ray Penny led Louisiana Tech scoring with 10 points in the Bulldog's opener against rugged Mississippi State Thursday night. Penny can be counted on for more of the same when the Canines host Ole Miss tonight.

Bill Bolton and 6-6½ Fox Ron Davidson.

Crowley will likely open with forwards Ray Penny and Joe Abendroth, center Jerry Hood, and guards Butch Miller and David Hruska. A second platoon will be composed of forwards Max Howard and Robert Bretz, center Jesse Bridges, and guards Ron McNabb, Jim Cranford, or Donnie Allen.

Off-Season Student Has 13-Hour Load

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP) — If Tommy Tresh isn't celebrating his selection as American League rookie of the year it isn't because he isn't appreciative of the honor awarded him Friday by the Baseball Writers' Association of America. It's just that he's too busy with his school work.

The switch-hitting star of the New York Yankees currently is embarked on an off-season college program which he hopes will enable him to obtain his degree in physical education at Central Michigan University after four more semesters.

"It should take me 8½ years, in all, to graduate," said the 24-year-old collegian, speaking over the phone from Mt. Pleasant, Mich.

"I am carrying a 13-hour work load, the maximum I'm allowed to take. Because of the World Series, I was five weeks late for classes. My instructors have been great. They've understood my position and have gone out of their way to help me. I've been able to make up two tests already but I'm not completely caught up yet and probably won't be until the end of the semester, but I'm getting there. Oh, yes, I got a B plus in one test and a B in the other."

Tresh has been returning to Central Michigan every year since 1957, some months before signing with the Yankees for a $30,000 bonus. He is now in his sixth semester.

Packers, Lions Picked For Pro Football Wins

By JACK HAND

Associated Press Sports Writer

The Green Bay Packers, a cinch to win the National Football League before their Thanksgiving Day disaster, now must win their last two on the road unless Detroit stumbles along the way.

A year ago the Packers headed into their annual California trip with the conference crown already clinched. All they had to do was time up for the New York Giants. They lost to San Francisco.

Things are different this time. The Giants already have clinched the Eastern Conference crown and are assured of hosting the Western champ Dec. 30 at Yankee Stadium. Green Bay (11-1) must beat San Francisco (6-6) Sunday and, if the Lions keep on winning, they also must defeat Los Angeles Dec. 16.

The Packers thumped the 49ers 31-13 Oct. 21 at Milwaukee and (4-0) and Dallas (9-3), already the are favored to do it again. The Western champ, plays host to Kilmer from San Francisco's lineup should widen the gap. Paul Hornung should be closer to his true form after another week of recovery, provided he shows no ill effects from last week's outing against the Rams.

Detroit (10-2) plays its last home game Sunday against Minnesota (2-9-1) a team that gave the Lions trouble before succumbing 17-6 Nov. 18. The Lions finish Dec. 16 at Chicago.

Second place money and a trip to the Playoff Bowl in Miami, Jan. 6, is the main consideration in the Eastern Conference where the Giants (10-2), having with Bill Kilmer out.

clinched, meet third-place Cleveland (6-10-1) at Yankee Stadium. The Browns knocked off the Giants, one of their two defeats 17-7, on opening day.

Pittsburgh (7-5) risks second place at Philadelphia (3-8-1) in a game with the revived Eagles. Dallas (5-6-1) plays at St. Louis (2-9-1) with nothing at stake but pride and jobs. It is the same story for Los Angeles (1-10-1) at Chicago (7-5).

A nationally televised (CBS) Saturday game sends Washington (5-5-2), still with a chance at second despite defeats in five of the last six games, to Baltimore (5-7).

In the American Football League, one Saturday game finds Buffalo (6-6-1) at New York (5-7), the season's last game for the Bills. On Sunday Houston (9-3) will try to nail down the Eastern title at home against Oakland (12), Boston (8-3-1) hopes to stay alive by winning at San Diego 31-13 Oct. 21 at Milwaukee and (4-0) and Dallas (9-3), already the Western champ, plays host to Kilmer from San Francisco's lineup should widen the gap. Paul Hornung should be closer to his true form after another week of recovery, provided he shows no ill effects from last week's outing against the Rams.

HINTS FROM Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
I make handy hot pads to protect my formica drain board top. I use pieces of the size and shape I desire. I make two thicknesses of these and then cover them with heavy-duty foil and replace the covers as they get worn or torn.
A READER
You angel! What an idea...
HELOISE

DEAR HELOISE:
I find that worn-out nylon hose make a fine cloth to clean off bath tub ring! There is something about nylon that surely must be abrasive.
R. HUBER

DEAR HELOISE:
I buy a large sponge and cut it up into small sponges so they will fit in the exact space in the soap tray which is recessed in the wall by my bath tub. I then lay the soap on this.
When finished with our bath, we use this sponge to clean the tub. It is full of soap and does an excellent cleaning job.

I cut the same type of sponge into smaller pieces and put them on the sink. This leaves no soap residue to clean up afterwards. There is also no need for a special cloth for cleaning the bathroom fixtures.

YOUR PROBLEMS

By Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What would you say or do if a woman you worked with had a habit of going out and buying clothes exactly like yours?

At first I thought it was a coincidence. Whenever I wore a new dress, or skirt, or sweater she would say, "Oh I have one just like that." Then a few days later she'd show up in hers. After a while I began to catch on to her sneaky tricks. She went out hunting for things exactly like mine after she saw them on me.

Please don't give me that old baloney about imitation being the sincerest form of flattery. I am not flattered. I am — ANNOYED TO PIECES.

DEAR PIECES: You can't put this woman in jail for buying clothes like yours, so resign yourself. She is going to continue to ape you, and that's that.

Of course it's irritating, but it's not Ulcerville. No two people look exactly alike in a dress or a sweater. It's what you put into it that counts, Buttercup.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just read the letter from the woman who wrote that she and her husband prefer to drive to a different place every weekend rather than take an annual vacation, like most folks.

One question puzzles me. Do they go to a different church every Sunday and meet all those "nice people?" Or do they meet them lolling around motel swimming pools, in fancy restaurants and in bowling alleys?

Perhaps she and her husband come home "physically refreshed" every Sunday evening, but spiritually they must be in pitiful condition.

It's too bad when people become so self-centered that their major concern is finding new ways to amuse themselves. Perhaps this is what is wrong with our children. With parents setting such shoddy example, where are young people supposed to learn solid values?

I would like very much to see this in print. — CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: Here it is and I'm delighted to print it. It seems strange that so many people have trouble giving one hour a week to the good Lord who has given THEM so many good years.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: After six years of marriage I thought I was in love with another man. I walked out on my husband and two children, taking nothing but a few clothes.

After six months I realized I had made a terrible mistake. My sweetheart missed his wife and family and we began to argue. One night after he had had too much to drink he called me a cheap home-wrecker and locked me out of our apartment.

I have been in touch with a friend and neighbor and have learned that after I left, my husband hired a housekeeper. He seems to think a lot of this woman and has taken her to social affairs. She has even been accepted by my husband's family.

I am dying to go home and ask my husband to take me back, but I'm afraid he might say no and it would kill my pride. Should I stay away and make a new life for myself? — FOOLISH WOMAN

DEAR FOOLISH: You seem to be overlooking a fairly important detail. You are still married. If your husband is squiring the housekeeper about, perhaps he too, has lost sight of this elementary fact. Get on the first thing that moves and go home. Beg your husband to take you back. You have nothing to lose, and a great deal to gain. Like the privilege of raising your children.

If alcohol is robbing you or someone you love of health and dignity, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Help For The Alcoholic," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Voice Of Broadway

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Ben Hecht's new musical, "Underworld," which was supposed to start rehearsals this month, put a damper on the east's Christmas season by announcing a postponement until March. The performers are depressed because now it's too late for them to find any work during the holidays. . . . There's a hot Rumor in Parish about Aristotle Onassis and Monaco. Apparently the Golden Greek has done a good job of ingratiating himself with the French government. . . . William Holden, one of the heavy investors in the Mt. Kenya Safari Club in Africa, is among those disappointed because political unrest in that area is discouraging many potential customers.

Cary Grant and Olivia de Havilland attended a fashion show at the Crillon in Paris the other day and sneaked out of the basement service entrance when it was over. There was some kind of "Yankee Go Home!" demonstration taking place just across the street, so they ducked out the back way to avoid getting involved in any rumpus or having their pictures taken in juxtaposition with the picketers. . . . Warner Brothers hopes to have a rough print of "PT 109" to show President Kennedy before the end of the year.

Pietro Germi, who directed the hilarious Italian film "Divorce, Italian Style," has started on his next, "Seduced and Abandoned." That fellow certainly doesn't want the public to get the idea that he makes pictures about mathematicians at work, does he? . . . Janet Blair and her boys, who were a big hit in Las Vegas, have been booked into the Royal Box at the Americana starting New Year's Eve. . . . Now the Green Communists have arrived in Cuba — at least 2,500 of them.

Broadway choreographer Joe Layton knows what to give the girl who has everything. He and his wife, Evelyn Russell, are having Mr. and Mrs. offices in their luxurious new duplex, and he's assigned decorator Howard Perry Rothberg to design her study around a complete set of the Modern Library books. Joe estimates it will take her five years to finish reading them. . . . "Flower Drum Song" is doing such good business at Harrah's in Lake Tahoe that it's attracting busloads of customers from San Francisco, and there's talk of the show making a nationwide tour followed by bookings in Europe.

Danielle Marioni, the tenor who is singing at the Metropolitan Opera, is causing quite a stir among music lovers. One of them is Copina Wright, who says his voice is as much like Caruso's as any she's ever heard. She's trying to get him into the movies in Hollywood. . . . Horst Buchholz turned down four films to accept a role in the forthcoming Broadway play "Andorra." Doesn't it make you want to cry? . . . Just in time for the

THE AID of President Kennedy has been asked for by Gloria Kassof, 17, wearing bridal veil and crown, so that marriage to Marine Lance Cpl. Bernard Richardson, 19, can take place on Dec. 22 as scheduled. Invitations were sent out and wedding hall rented when the Cuban situation erupted. Richardson's marine unit was shipped out. Plea to his captain brought no assurance he'd be on hand. So Gloria has written to President Kennedy asking his aid. (AP Wire-photo)

Oil Allowable Cut

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Conservation Commission James Gill said Friday Louisiana's oil production allowable for January and February will be cut about 28,000 barrels from the current level of 1,216,193 barrels per day.

Gill said the reduction, announced after a hearing in New Orleans, would be accomplished by a one per cent cut in the "depth bracket" formula down to 32 per cent of the level of March, 1953.

The depth bracket formula is one Louisiana uses to set allowable for individual wells roughly in proportion to their depths.

The exact January-February figure, Gill said, will be set after a staff conference scheduled for Dec. 20.

The commissioner announced his estimate of the allowable after a review of formal nominations for purchases and of oral statements at the New Orleans hearing.

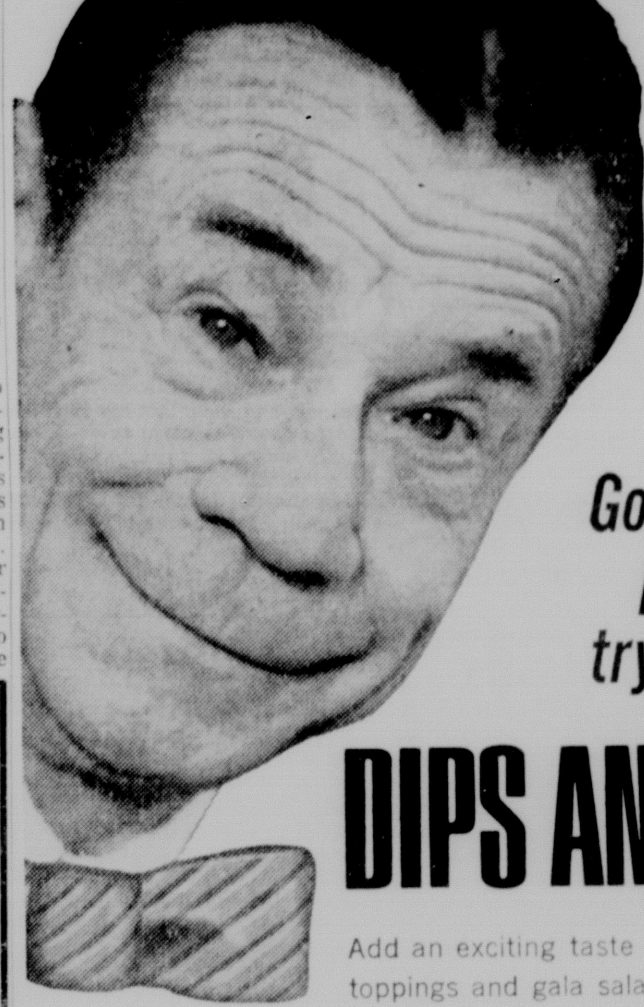

He noted President Kennedy has finally proclaimed his new import restriction program. "Since future imports east of the Rocky Mountains will be pegged at 12.2 per cent of the domestic production," he said, "it can be assumed that domestic producing states can enjoy future growth in crude production."

Gill said he "reluctantly" must again bring up the subject of realistic nominations. You will recall that the last time we made a point of this problem, material improvement was noticed in our records. However, there has been a bit of back-sliding."

BONN POLITICAL CRISIS Adenauer Bows, To Retire Soon

BONN, Germany (AP) — Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's reluctant promise to retire next fall cleared the way Friday for a new coalition government to resolve West Germany's political crisis.

Economics Minister Ludwig Erhard, 65, credited with masterminding the "economic miracle" that raised the nation from war ruins to unprecedented prosperity, is in line to take over when Adenauer steps down.

The 86-year-old chancellor had fought any limit on his tenure in office. His decision to give up was announced by the parliamentary floor leader of his Christian Democratic party, Heinrich von Brentano, but no exact resignation date was set.

Adenauer was elected to a four-year term by the Bundestag after last fall's general election, but he could be removed by a majority of the members. This made it possible for him to ignore pressure for his resignation commitment.

The strong-willed, unbending old man, who dominated West Germany's politics since the nation was created 13 years ago, has stood for a close alliance with the United States, determined opposition to the Communist East block, and a new Europe made strong and prosperous through the Common Market.

Erhard, 65, now the overwhelming choice of the Christian Democratic party to succeed Adenauer, generally supports those policies. Adenauer's tenure became a main issue in the government crisis which grew out of the six-week-old Der Spiegel affair. He was partly blamed for the way the treason action against a news magazine turned into a national controversy that brought widespread criticism of the government.

With Adenauer's agreement to set a retirement time, the Christian Democrats and conservative Free Democrats resumed negotiations on re-forming their year-old coalition, which broke up Nov. 20. They reported agreement was reached on a number of basic questions. Predictions were made by both sides that a new government will be settled upon next week.

The right-wing Free Democrats like Erhard for his opposition to government interference in business. Together, the two parties control 308 Bundestag votes, 58 more than the simple majority needed to elect a chancellor.

Adenauer early this week sounded out the left-leaning Socialists in an effort to avoid putting a time limit on his chancellorship but the efforts failed.

Last fall the chancellor beat back attempts to force him out of office. Then the principal complaints against him were his age and his one-man style of governing.

Dissatisfaction with the handling of the Der Spiegel affair added to this and led to an anti-Adenauer feeling in all parties, including his own.

The program, under the direction of J. Weston Devillier Jr., president of Louisiana Hospital Service, will open at 8 a.m. Dec. 13 with registration in the adult education center. The general program will begin at 9:30 with an address of welcome by Nathaniel M. Caffee, Ph.D., vice president and dean of academic affairs at LSU. Other speakers to be heard will be James M. Gardiner, president - elect, Lafayette; Clarence L. Dunn, Ph.D., head of the department of accounting, LSU, and Carl C. Bellard, C. P. A., Opelousas.

The remainder of the first day will be given over to group discussions and sectional meetings led by Sister Mary Rose, Chairman, Opelousas. Topping off the day's activities, a banquet will be held in the Faculty Club at 7:30. William D. Ross, dean of the college of Business Administration at LSU, will be the main speaker.

The second day's activities schedule will be devoted mainly to sectional meetings and discussions on matters closely related to hospital accounting problems along with the fellowship examination sponsored by the American Association of Hospital Accountants, according to Willard L. Wilkes, business manager of the Baton Rouge General Hospital, chairman.

Following a noon luncheon, a general business session will be held at 1:30 with presentation of awards and certificates by the retiring group president.
